

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Sinclair should not be allowed to use the airwaves for electioneering. If they are going to air anti-Kerry information, then they should air Fahrenheit 911 also. This is just another attempt of a desperate administration trying to manipulate the election, again!
